Boston/Iowa		Event in Boston, suspects from Iowa Men sentenced to 2 years in prison in Pokemon weapons case Posted: Jul 21, 2016 12:16 AM EST Updated: Jul 21, 2016 5:47 PM EST BOSTON (AP) - Two men who made online threats against the Pokemon World Championships and took guns and ammunition to the event last August pleaded guilty on Thursday and were each sentenced to two years in prison. James Stumbo, of Boone, Iowa, and Kevin Norton, of Ames, Iowa, were arrested while trying to register for the Boston event. Authorities subsequently found an AR-15 rifle, a 12-gauge shotgun and nearly 300 rounds of ammunition in their car. Stumbo, 28, and Norton, 19, changed their pleas from not guilty to guilty in Suffolk Superior Court in Boston on Thursday. They were also given two years of probation and were ordered to undergo mental health evaluations and possess no weapons once their prison terms are completed. http://www.wsiltv.com/story/32494748/men-sentenced-to-2-years-in-prison-in-pokemon-weapons-case [[Keywords: teens,

Anna, Texas area		Unsuspecting Drivers Shot at on North Texas Highway Anna police are trying to determine if a high-powered pellet gun was used At least four people have reported being shot at while driving on a North Texas highway, according to police in Anna. Investigators believe the shooter is using a high-powered pellet gun, but they are not ruling out the possibility a low-caliber rifle was used. The shootings occurred along Texas Highway 5 between Anna and Melissa.
